Wind Creek Culinary Team Wins Top Honors in Nationwide Competition

Las Vegas, NV (November 25, 2010) - In a fierce competition among some of America's top chefs, Chef Stafford DeCambra, Corporate Chef for the Wind Creek Hotel and Casino, won a coveted slot on Team Las Vegas awarded by the American Culinary Federation (ACF). Team Las Vegas will compete in the Culinary World Cup in 2010 and the International Culinary Olympics in 2012. Additionally, "Chef Stafford", as he is known in the culinary world, along with Wind Creek colleagues Chef Louis Chatham and Donna Baptist won one gold and two bronze medals.

Jay Dorris, President and PCI Gaming noted, "I could not be more proud of Chef Stafford, Chef Louis and Donna Baptist. Because of them, our culinary reputation for excellence is increasingly known nationally." DeCambra was tapped with the additional honor of being asked to be the Captain of Team Las Vegas. If he decides to accept that position, Team Las Vegas will practice for the competition at the Wind Creek kitchens in Atmore, Alabama.

"This was really a team effort and a team win." said DeCambra. "Donna, Chef Louis and I drove the whole way to Las Vegas for the chance to compete together. Not only does that show how much we enjoy each other's company, it also demonstrates that we are committed to being the very best, and that we win as a team. It was a long road trip that was worth every minute."

Dorris noted, "Whether or not Chef Stafford decides to Captain the Las Vegas team, it is clear that Wind Creek can compete and win against the finest that America has to offer. This important honor that further reinforces our belief that when we do it right, strive to be the best, and have fun, recognition will follow."
